100X LEARNING THEORIES

UMUC edX IDT100x Instructional Design and Technology: Learning Theories Rubric for Assessing Final Portfolio

The following rubric will be used to grade your final portfolio. Use this as a guide when creating and finalizing your portfolio.

	Exemplary	Meets Expectations	Needs Improvement
Welcome Page	Includes name, a short professional bio, and why the portfolio was created.	Includes two of three; name, a short professional bio, and why the portfolio was created.	Missing or incomplete information in the bio and/or purpose for the portfolio.
Comparing Learning Theories	Page includes all of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> summary/bulleted list of the similarities and differences among all learning theories (Behaviorism, Constructivism, Cognitivism, Connectivism, Andragogy) Information is clearly conveyed in a visual Information about each theory is correct 	Page includes the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> summary/bulleted list of the similarities and differences among at least three learning theories (Behaviorism, Constructivism, Cognitivism, Connectivism, Andragogy) Information is conveyed in a visual, but may be difficult to follow 	Page includes the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> summary/bulleted list of the similarities and differences between only two or less learning theories (Behaviorism, Constructivism, Cognitivism, Connectivism, Andragogy) Information may be difficult to follow or too text-based Information about each theory is lacking detail

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Information about each theory is correct, but may be lacking detail
Personal Learning Experiences	You clearly described three personal learning experiences (1 from elementary or middle school, 1 from high school or college, and 1 from your professional career). Your experiences are clearly indicated with headers and sufficient detail (no more than 300 words for each). You use pseudonyms if you need to state specific names of schools or companies.	You clearly described two personal learning experiences. Your experiences are clearly indicated with headers but may lack detail or exceed the 300 words limit. You use pseudonyms if you need to state specific names of schools or companies.	You only describe one personal learning experience or your three experiences are lacking sufficient detail.
Behaviorism	You provide a complete overview of the learning theory and develop a learning scenario that applies behaviorism and clearly described all three requirements listed in the assignment, using specific details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You developed a learning scenario and described all three requirements listed in the assignment, using general details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You didn't develop a proper behaviorism based learning scenario and you may be lacking direct references to the literature and/or the connections are not correct.
Constructivism	You provide a complete overview of the learning theory and develop a learning scenario that applies constructivism and clearly described all three requirements listed in the assignment, using specific details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You developed a learning scenario and described all three requirements listed in the assignment, using general details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You didn't develop a proper constructivist based learning scenario and you may be lacking direct references to the literature and/or the connections are not correct.

Cognitivism OR Connectivism	You provide a complete overview of the learning theory and you refer to one or more of the learning experiences you described in your Personal Learning Experiences page. You thoroughly describe how your personal learning experience was an example or non-example of the learning theory, using specific details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You refer to one of the learning experiences you described in your Personal Learning Experiences page. You briefly describe how your personal learning experience was an example or non-example of the learning theory, using general details about WHY, with literature supporting your discussion in APA.	You refer to one of the learning experiences you described in your Personal Learning Experiences page. You describe how your personal learning experience was an example or non-example of the learning theory, but you may be lacking direct references to the literature and/or the connections are not correct.
Andragogy	You provide a complete, detailed overview of the learning theory, the five assumptions and their importance to applying the learning theory, key aspects for design and an detailed example of a learning scenario applying those concepts.	You provide a brief overview of the learning theory, the five assumptions, key aspects for design and an example of a learning scenario applying those concepts.	You provide an incomplete overview of the learning theory, do not include or provide incomplete descriptions of the five assumptions and key aspects for design and do not include an example of a learning scenario applying those concepts.
Authentic Assessment	Your page contains two sections. Each section contains: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A brief description of a learning scenario (you can create one of your own or use something you have experienced firsthand). • A description of an authentic assessment that could be used to assess the learning scenario grounded in either PBL, experiential learning, service learning, or gamification. 	Your page contains one section or two sections, with some information missing. The section(s) contains: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A brief description of a learning scenario (you can create one of your own or use something you have experienced firsthand). • A description of an authentic assessment that could be used to assess the learning scenario grounded in either PBL, 	Content is missing and/or there is not a clear connection to the literature.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A clear connection to how this assessment is authentic and ties to PBL, experiential learning, service learning, or gamification using APA references literature. 	experiential learning, service learning, or gamification. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Your evidence for how your example is an authentic assessment and ties to PBL, experiential learning, service learning, or gamification may be evident, but unclear or missing some references to the literature.
MicroLearning Project	You provide a complete, detailed overview of your MicroLearning project, how you applied theory principles and a detailed reflection inclusive of your biggest 'ah ha' moment about your approach to learning and discussion of why.	You provide a brief overview of your MicroLearning project, general discussion of how you applied theory principles and a reflection inclusive of your biggest 'ah ha' moment about your approach to learning and discussion of why.	You provide an incomplete overview of your MicroLearning project, or lacked how you applied theory principles or a reflection of your biggest 'ah ha' moment about your approach to learning.
